WHAT IS WRAPAROUND?

Wraparound is an intensive team based planning process that follows a series of steps to help children, young adults, and their families accomplish their family vision. This individualized care planning process is a shared commitment amongst professionals, youth, families, and natural supports to the 10 principles of Wraparound to drive the process.

WHERE DID WRAPAROUND COME FROM?

HISTORY OF WRAPAROUND

Building on program models drawn from Europe and Canada, the Kaleidoscope program in Chicago began implementing private agency-based individualized services as early as 1975. The term wraparound was first used in the early 1980s to describe the response to a class-action lawsuit in North Carolina that resulted in development of an array of comprehensive, community-based services for individual children and their families. In 1985, the Alaska Youth Initiative was successfully formed and was quickly followed by replications in Washington and Vermont.

WRAPAROUND IN OREGON

House Bill 2144 passed the 2009 Legislative Session providing statutory direction for the Statewide Systems of Care and Wraparound Initiative. The legislation called for an advisory committee and a biennial report to the legislature on progress and cost of full implementation. Mental Health was named the lead administrative agency amongst Child Welfare, Juvenile Justice and Education. 2010-2013 three mental health organizations and eight counties were awarded to be part of the demonstration sites for the pilot project. Due to providing better health outcomes, better care at lower costs, in 2014 the SOCWI grant was awarded to 13 CCOs across 30 Counties. As of January 2017, 15 out of 15 CCOs will be implementing the System of Care Wraparound Initiative.
